PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS WHO DON'T KNOW MUCH

Can't Tell Whether Caesar Was a Man or a God, but Are Adepts in Singing Coon Songs.

Editor Advertiser: "Sing more hard," said one boy to another the other day. We knew at once he must have heard the teacher say: "Sing softly."

But what we cannot like and what jars on the ear, are expressions in common use like to these:

"What for you no come?"
"Oh, you got plenty money."

"He not went when I tell him."

"He can work better'n nor me," etc.

And now, to pass from pupils to their teacher! We will be brief in our censure but say this much: that no woman called by that high and noble name could be heard to say as the writer of this did overhear: "You bet chure life I won't." Now, what can be the daily converse of that woman for instance? What her aims? The greatest good to the greatest number is certainly ours, and while such things are disagreeable to speak about and to bring to light, the only way to cause a reformation in school work is to begin with the head. A pupil watches his teacher and she makes or mars, "You bet chure life!"

We believe in Normal schools with all our will; but Normal school work alone, not even a college, ever made one teacher. There must be the cultivation of the heart, the sweetest courtesy, the control of the temper and of the tongue, and the perfect whiteness of the daily life. If to all this, there is sufficient knowledge where-with to impart, a clear, cool, logical brain, a real earnest love for God and for His children and for all creation, bird or brute, plant or flower, sky and sea, then may one try to undertake the task of teaching, imparting. But other than something akin, remotely akin, at least, to all that we have mapped out (in these horrid minutes of our busy life on the road) then may God help and pity the student, big or little. "You bet chure life!"

Not fifty per cent of the teachers up and down Hawaii read three good authors in a year's time, and to these the Bible is as a sealed book the whole school year. Neither do they know anything of the help and beauty of hymnology.

We are coming to bedrock now in the matter of teaching and literature, and the use and application of the one to the other. But, we argue and contend that a teacher can not keep up who does not keep up, a steady persistent course of the very best reading, not of English only, but the classics of Germany, France, etc., either in the original or the best translations. Neither should a teacher confine herself to fiction or to poetry, but should keep pace with advanced movements and discoveries in science, in medicine and in philosophy. A teacher to be worthy of the name and to continue that, must be awake and in earnest, must be sincere and honest, honorable.

What do the unread know, pray, of the splendid imagery of Isaiah and of Jeremiah, the story of Nehemiah and his courage grand, the passionate defense of St. Paul, the pleading of St. John, the Sermon on the Mount, the journey of the children of Israel, the manna in the wilderness, the pillar of cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night, the sweet singer of Israel, the feeding of the multitude, the Crucifixion, the Resurrection. Alas! it is all as Greek to them as the Iliad or the Odyssey. What do they really know even of the modern authors? They do not know the correct spelling of the plays of Shakespeare, or whether Cymbeline, for instance, was masculine or feminine, or Caesar a god or a man. Should you allude to the Faerie Queene, they are again dense and had never heard of Dr. Johnson and his Rasselas.

But, we saw one teacher who could sing fifteen coon songs in one evening, and play on a banjo or something as good! At the Zoo we like a first-rate coon song, full of sweet fun and we like a clog dance, and don't look for the stately minuet; and we enjoy a huge joke big as an elephant, and a rollicking farce, etc.; but, we don't relish that kind three times a day, seven days in the week. We are reasonable beings (teachers) and life can not be made a merry-go-round to any profit of mind or soul or body. Life is real, life is earnest. And the teacher should early make that discovery or she is but a misnomer. And these people are to enlighten the rising generation, forsooth, at $35, more or less, a month. Alack, alack, auvee. There is a blunder somewhere that a few of them did not learn cookery or laundry work, to make good bread, etc. The Normal school is needed and so is the farm and the kitchen. It looks to us as if the boys at Waialee are in luck; for while we do hope that few of them will seek for teaching, they have a chance for good manual work.

THE FIRM OF MILLIKEN BROS.

As several reports have appeared in the daily press relative to the business of Milliken Brothers, and as these reports in many cases are incorrect, misleading and published without their knowledge or consent, they desire at this time to make the following statement:

This firm has now been engaged in the steel and iron business in New York City for nearly fifty years. The business has grown very rapidly in the last few years and now extends to all quarters of the globe. In order to more conveniently handle this business, it has been decided to conduct it under the corporate form and under the name of Milliken Brothers, Incorporated. The new corporation of Milliken Brothers has a capital of $2,500,000 and the stock is held entirely by Edward F. Milliken and Foster Milliken, the sole owners of the present business, and no new interests are included in the new arrangement. The business in future will be conducted the same as in the past. As far as the reports are concerned on the building of an open hearth steel plant and rolling mill to roll the raw material used by them, no plans have been definitely decided on, nor will any definite action be taken in connection with this matter for several months yet. Milliken Bros., Inc., may decide, however, to build rolling mills for the purpose of rolling structural shapes and plates, as the necessity of doing so has become apparent to them in order to hold and control their vast export business, and their location on tide water is advantageously situated for export trade. Mr. George L. Reis, formerly general manager of the Illinois Steel Company and lately general manager of the Lackawanna Iron and Steel Company at Buffalo, N. Y., and Mr. Alexander K. Hamilton, lately chief engineer of the Lackawanna Iron and Steel Company, have entered their employment. No association of outside interests or manufacturers is contemplated in case this proposed steel plant should be built. They are not engaged in the purchase of any additional property at Staten Island, as they already
